

About Us

In 1980, Luis Coll (Univ. of Pennsylvania, 1952), an oral surgeon and father of three, chose to pursue his passion as a mechanic and engineer. He created a company in Puerto Rico that manufactured A/C parts, ultimately exporting them. In 1987, Luis created UAC to supply the manufacturing facility. When Luis passed away in 1990, his son Carlos, expecting the birth of his second child, Sophia, chose to leave his profession as a lawyer to run the family business.

In 1990, Carlos began importing from Asia, allowing the company to grow as a distributor with a manufacturing background, known for its high quality and low cost. In 1991, Carlos became the industry's first to collaborate with Chinese factories, focusing on product development, later earning the MACS Industry Pioneer Award. In 2006, after years of re-engineering and providing high quality products, Carlos consolidated his distribution center which consisted of three warehouses into one central location, further improving logistics and customer service.

Sophia Coll joined UAC in 2013, after completing her B.S. in Economics from the Univ. of Pennsylvania and interning at Goldman Sachs in NYC. As co-president, Sophia is focused on improving product development and customer service through advances in the company's IT department.

Francisco Coll joined UAC in 2015. Francisco completed his B.S. in Financial Economics and East Asian Studies from Vanderbilt University and subsequently spent eight years working in NYC for UBS Investment Bank and BTG Pactual. As co-president, Francisco is focused on business development, human resources, and operational and financial efficiency.
